Mim Mak: “Diving-Dance”

Overall Winner

Party & Evening-Wear Group Winner

The designer’s passion for diving and dancing inspired this collection. A novelty material for party wear, neoprene can create striking shapes, especially when mixed with soft chiffon. The resulting outfits are figure-hugging and exaggerated. The black and fluorescent-yellow colours create strong contrast.

Tracey Cheung: “The Establishment Soul”

Contemporary Day-Wear Group Winner

The Egyptian mummy and Gothic cathedral, symbols of spirituality and rebirth, provided the inspiration for this collection. The designer sewed strips of cloth onto fabric to create geometric patterns. The overall silhouette is neat and structured.

Kenax Leung: “The Fear of Mr Alien”

Casual & Jeans-Wear Group Winner

The collection is inspired by crop circles, purportedly made by aliens. The geometric patterns are created with knits, but neoprene is also used to achieve a detached, outer-space feel. There is also a lot of layering with the leather jackets, and an overall high-street sports style.
